BSL 2045: MAPPING A BRIGHTER FUTURE

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

The city of Bay St. Louis and Orion Planning and Design team members on Monday hosted a “Community Vision Workshop” at the BSL Community Hall for the city’s new 20-year comprehensive plan.

City officials and Orion kicked off the “BSL 2045” comprehensive planning process in March with a public forum, followed up by a two-month period where people responded to a survey at bsl2045.com about how they wanted the city to grow. Orion got about 1,400 responses to the survey.

Initially, Orion Partner Robert Barber said Monday, “we got a little bit of feedback, now we’re going much deeper into design.”

Barber and the Orion team gave an overview of what they’re looking at and what they want to hear from the residents. Major planning stations include the Old Town and Depot areas; neighborhoods; the Hwy. 90 corridor; parks and trails; and mobility, with questions about pedestrian and bicycle routes and aesthetic values.

Among the planning team’s values and themes during the process:

GENERAL MANAGER

The Waveland Helping Hands Community Organization on Saturday hosted its annual Juneteenth celebration at Martin Luther King Park.

“Juneteenth is the oldest known celebration commemorating the ending of slavery in the United States,” according to the organization. “Dating back to 1865, it was on June 19 that the Union soldiers, led by major General Gordon Granger, landed at Galveston, Texas with news that the war had ended and that the enslaved were now free. Note that this was two-and-a-half- years after President Lincoln’s Emancipation Proclamation - which had become official January 1, 1863. The Emancipation Proclamation had little impact on the Texans due to the minimal number of Union troops to enforce the new Executive Order. However, with the surrender of General Lee in April of 1865, and District Attorney W. Crosby Parker announced Friday that Joseph Alonzo Haynes, 35, was found guilty in the death of Jermaine “Red” Watts, 23.

“Judge Christopher Schmidt presided over the three-day trial,” Parker said. “The jury deliberated an hour before returning their verdict.

The shooting occurred in the early morning hours of May 9, 2021, outside what was then known as the Third Base Lounge.

New oral history project to preserve, celebrate legacy of the Valena C. Jones School

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

The Friends of Valena C. Jones School on Saturday hosted a brief ceremony to celebrate a grant from the Mississippi Humanities Council to conduct an oral history project about the school.

The project will include interviews of former students and faculty at the school, focusing primarily on the period just before and during nationwide school integration.

“We put together this idea, because I think that preserving the memories of the African American Experience during that very transformative time period during the 1960s and 1970s as local people experienced integration is very important,” Allison Anderson said. “It’s a part of our history we don’t really hear about. ... I think it’s important to preserve those memories and to share with the younger generation the kind of struggles that people experienced.”

Anderson was the emcee for Saturday’s ceremony, and wrote the application to the Humanities Council for the grant.

She and husband John Anderson own unAbridged Architecture in Bay St. Louis, and participated in the restoration of the historic Valena C. Jones School building in 2009.

“The Valena C Jones School has served as the Center of the rich Educational, Cultural, Political, cal, Social and Historical heritage for thousands of minority families,” according to the petition the Friends of the school circulated last year, successfully lobbying to get the school recognized as a state landmark. “The Valena C. Jones School has served families in Hancock County and Bay St Louis in particular.”

Valena Cecelia MacArthur Jones was born in Bay St Louis, MS in 1872. After graduating in 1892 from Straight College, a historically black college in New Orleans, she was named principal of the then-Bay St Louis Negro School in 1892. Later, the school would be named in her honor. The school operated for 80 years from 1892 to the last graduating class of 1969. From 1969 to 1972, the school served as a primary school until its closing. The current structure was built in 1947.

After that, the property served as the headquarters for both the Bay St. Louis Fire Department and Bay St. Louis Police Department until Hurricane Katrina struck in 2005. Since then, the site has served as the home of the Hancock County branch of the Boys & Girls Clubs of the Gulf Coast.

“The Valena C Jones School served as the primary institution for educating black students,” according to the petition. “The entire Bay St Louis/Hancock County black community has benefited enormously from The Valena C Jones School. She has stood throughout the years as a beacon of hope during the many dark and trying times when black students struggled to get a quality education. Illustrations of self-expression flourished through cultural applications like music, plays, songs, and poems. The teaching staff taught students and the Community how to prepare for the voting process in spite of Jim Crow laws and attempts to suppress the black vote. School administrators, teachers and staff taught social skills to prepare students for entry into society and the work place. Students were also taught about the rich historic heritage of Black Americans.”

The Mississippi Department of Archives and History granted the state landmark status this past April.

Anderson said the oral history project will be done “peer-to-peer,” in order to help break down some of the boundaries, “so that African-American alumni from the school can interview their former teachers and classmates.”

Dr. Deanne Stephens from the University of Southern Mississippi will serve as project advisor, training volunteers on how to conduct oral history interviews; and the university’s Oral History department “will preserve the interviews in perpetuity.”

The Friends of Valena

Members of the Friends of Valena C. Jones School attended a ceremony on Saturday to announce the new oral history project on the facility.

C. Jones School will also be collecting, scanning and cataloguing memorabilia.

“We’re hoping this is just the first step to get an even larger grant to create an actual exhibit,” Anderson said. “We’re hoping this turns into an even bigger project and connects with other projects across the Coast, such as Gulfside Assembly or Turkey Creek, to other African-American Communities.”

At Saturday’s ceremony, Anderson lamented the Friends’ recent loss of its former leader, Arthur Clementin III.

“He was the guiding force,” she said. “I wish he was here, but I’m glad he knew that we got the designation.”

Conservation Corner: National Pollinator Week

The next time you snack on almonds, add blueberries to your smoothie, or eat pumpkin pie, thank a pollinator and thank farmers, ranchers, and private forestland owners who work hard to create and maintain their habitat.

Pollinators, such as honeybees, bumblebees, butterflies, birds, bats, flies, and many others, play a critical role in crop production. Without pollinators, we wouldn't have many crops.

During the week of June 19-25, the nation will celebrate these iconic and crucial pollinators during National Pollinator Week. The U.S. Senate designated the third week in June as National Pollinator Week to increase awareness about the importance of pollinators and the challenges many of them face, including serious population declines and habitat losses, often due to land use changes and excessive or improper pesticide use. Nearly 200 species of pollinators are considered threatened or extinct.

Pollination occurs when pollen grains are moved between two flowers of the same species, or within a single flower by wind or insects and animals. Successful pollination results in healthy fruit and fertile seeds, allowing the plants to reproduce.

The extensive and critical world of crop pollinators is a $20 billion a year industry. About 75% of crop plants are pollinated by billions of animals and insects every year.

Many federal, state, and local government agencies, non-government organizations, and universities have launched extensive efforts to protect pollinators, especially honeybees and the monarch butterfly. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) works closely with farmers, forest landowners, and other private landowners to increase pollinator habitat in targeted areas nationwide.

The Environmental Quality Incentives Program, through USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service, offers financial incentives to

Hancock History: Crane Creek

Crane Creek is a tributary of the Wolf River, and it is also the name of a scenic community in the same area in the northeast part of Hancock County. The Shaw Family has resided in Crane Creek since 1847, and this location has also been called Shaw Town by the locals, as well as Crane Creek, over the years.

One of the first pioneer settlers to this beautiful place was John Gadsden Shaw (1819-1885). John was born in Mayville, South Carolina on a farm. Around 1846 John and his brother drove a wagon load of cotton from their family farm to New Orleans, hoping to sell their produce for a better price than they could get in South Carolina. They sold the cotton, but after receiving the money, they were robbed by local thieves. John was forced to attempt to work his way back home. He got as far as Pass Christian, MS, before he needed to find temporary employment to generate additional travel money.

Because John was educated, Carlos Ladner,

a store owner in Pass Christian offered him work. He hired John to tutor his children who needed further education than they had previously received. One of these children was a fifteen-year-old daughter, Annie Ladner (1831-1911). Accordingly, Annie and John married in 1847. The couple moved to what is now known as Tally Shaw Road in Harrison County, which is on the east side of the Wolf River, just off Highway 53.

They homesteaded a farm and had their first child in 1848. John and Annie had a total of fifteen children. Today the Shaw Family can boast of hundreds of descendants from this couple that resided all over the country. John and Annie are buried in the small, private John G. Shaw Cemetery located at the site of their homestead on a lovely hillside.

An important source of family lore is a fourth generation Shaw descendant, Robert Douglas (Doug) Stewart (b. 1940), who lives on Stewart Lane in Crane Creek. Doug's mother, Birdie Shaw (1918-2003), is the link in this generation chain to the Stewarts. Doug grew up mostly in the Crane Creek area. He graduated from Sellers High School in 1958 and graduated from Pearl River Junior College in Poplarville in 1962. In college he studied drafting programs and worked in New Orleans for Texaco as an assistant engineer for thirty-four years.

While on scholarship at college, Doug met a beautiful cheerleader, Mary Emma (1941-2022) from Hattiesburg. Mary had jet black hair and shared Doug's love of sports. Mary was on scholarship as well and studied music. Doug and Mary married after college. Mary was an active member and officer of the Parent Teacher Association and a kindergarten teacher. In addition, she also worked for Lockheed Martin at Stennis Space Center and Texaco in New Orleans. She was a self-taught genealogist researching and documenting the descendants of the John Gadsden and Annie Ladner Shaw Family. Doug and Mary reared five children: Robert, Sharan, Kirk, Michael, and Valorie. Doug retired from Texaco in 1996 and moved back to Crane Creek, living on the family farm. He has been on the local school board for ten years and served as the President of the Mississippi School Board Association. Doug and Mary were instrumental in organizing family reunions that hosted as many as two hundred participants at one time. Many of these were from other states. Sadly, Mary died of heart disease in 2022.

In a forthcoming column, the rest of the Shaw Family will be presented.

FOR THE PEOPLE FEAR

Guest Column
By Bruce Campbell

At his first inauguration, in 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt told the nation: "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

The context was the Great Depression, a frightening time of economic catastrophe and staggering unemployment that makes today's inflation problems sink to insignificance in comparison. But Roosevelt knew the power of fear. And so do today's politicians. Some of the more radical Republicans, especially, are masters at seizing the extremes and convincing their followers that the craziest ideas are the Democratic mainstream.

Fear can be unreasonable and emotional. It is often divisive and irrational. Some people allow their lives to be dominated by fear and call it loyalty or patriotism.

What do we really have to be afraid of? What is "Wokeism?" And who is "woke?" It started out as an innocuous term for social awareness, and many right-wing politicians have turned it into a synonym for Democrats in general. But it is a fringe concept. How pervasive is it really? We hear only of the isolated cases where a vocal minority with no understanding of the First Amendment hounds a professor into purgatory or intimidates a college administration into canceling an event or appearance. It is sad to see some celebrity apologize for a minor offense that few people would consider offensive. If someone's delicate feelings are hurt, so be it. Certainly, there are places where a line should be drawn, but not a curve. Is the intolerance of a vocal minority more of a threat to our democracy than election denial or attacks on our capitol or rigging the electoral system through gerrymandering?

What do we have to fear from a book? Whatever it says, we don't have to read it. And we don't have to believe it.

And our children don't have to read it either, but if they do, why can't we discuss it with them? Are we afraid to talk about things that make us uncomfortable? Sooner or later, we all grow up – or at least we age. Reality is always there.

Why should we be afraid of someone's sexual orientation? Nearly everyone has an LGBTQ cousin or sister or friend. In terms of percentages, there aren't any more homosexual people around now than there ever were, and most of us have learned that they are not really different from the rest of

Victims identified in I-10 car-hauler crash

ECHO STAFF

Local authorities have released the identities of two people killed early Wednesday morning in the westbound lane of I-10 near mile marker 2 when a car-hauler crashed.
The accident occurred at around 3 a.m. Wednesday. Officials said two people, now identified as South Carolina residents Elog Tarasevich, 29, and Yakov Tarasevich, 24, were killed in the crash.
The Mississippi Department of Transportation and Mississippi Highway Patrol shut down the area of the highway for several hours, re-routing traffic, before one lane finally opened at around noon on Wednesday.
“Motorists should remain alert for the next few hours as traffic is still moderately congested,” MDOT said in a traffic warning on social media.

The cleanup was made more difficult because each of the cars being hauled had to be removed before the 18-wheeler hauling them could be towed, officials said.

agricultural producers and private forest landowners who enhance pollinator habitat by voluntarily implementing conservation practices such as cover crops, wildflower and native plantings in buffers, and areas not in production.
The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) can also be used to enhance habitat to protect pollinators. Administered by USDA’s Farm Service Agency, the CRP is a land conservation program in which enrolled landowners remove environmentally sensitive land from agricultural production and plant species that will improve environmental health and quality.

When we protect pollinators, we protect our ability to grow food. We thank our farmers, ranchers, and private forest landowners who offer a safe haven for pollinators and grow the products we enjoy.

Whether you are a large commodity producer, a small and diverse organic producer, or even a suburban homeowner, you can have an important role in saving pollinators in Mississippi.

Rachel Jewell said at the time that Watts suffered multiple gunshot wounds, and was declared dead at the scene.

Just a few hours later, a warrant was issued for Haynes, and Bay police arrested him the same day.

“Eyewitnesses testified (at this week’s trial) that the victim had been involved in an argument with other patrons regarding a vehicle,” Parker said. “During the argument, witnesses testified that (Haynes) walked up to Jermaine Watts and fired multiple gunshots into his body.”

“The testimony revealed that the victim was unarmed at the time of the shooting,” said ADA Chris Daniel, who tried the case with ADA Jeremy Necaise. “During cross examination, the defendant admitted to shooting Jermaine Watts with his 9 mm handgun during the argument, but alleged he only fired in self-defense.”

Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Staci Turner testified that Watts had four separate gunshot wounds, Daniel said, and “Lead Det. Dustin Weir testified and explained video evidence from the parking lot near the lounge that showed dozens of patrons who were present at the time of the shooting, but only a few remained on scene to provide assistance after the shooting occurred.”

After the jury returned its verdict, Schmidt asked counsel to confer on dates to schedule a sentencing hearing, Parker said. Haynes faces up to 20 years in prison for manslaughter.

“We are proud of the hard work that was done by law enforcement to ensure justice for the victim and his family,” Parker said. “This was a difficult case that involved several complex challenges, but it was clear that Jermaine Watts should not have died that night in Bay St. Louis, and we are pleased that the jury agreed with this conclusion.”

were shot a little after midnight on April 30 at a house party in Bay St. Louis, and police quickly arrested 19-year-old Pass Christian resident Cameron Everest Brand in the case. He was initially charged with six counts of aggravated assault and held on a $3 million bond, but after 16-year-old Haeleigh Stamper and 18-year-old De’Arreis Smith died, the charges were upgraded to murder, and he was held without bond.

As of press time Tuesday, Brand was still being held at the Hancock County Justice Facility.

MDOT offers free resources to help residents prepare for hurricanes

SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) offers several free resources to help Mississippi residents prepare for a hurricane before a tropical system threatens.

The MDOT Traffic mobile app, a hurricane evacuation kit checklist and the 2023 MDOT Hurricane Evacuation Guide in English, Spanish and Vietnamese are all available to assist residents with evacuation plans.

“Well before a hurricane reaches the Gulf, it’s important to have an evacuation plan in place,” said Commissioner Tom King, Southern Transportation District. “MDOT offers free resources to help you make informed decisions ahead of a storm. I encourage every Mississippian to take advantage of these resources to prepare yourself and your family for this hurricane season.”

The MDOT Hurricane Evacuation Guide features evacuation routes, contraflow information, Mississippi Public Broadcasting radio coverage areas and important contacts for the Mississippi

Highway Patrol, American Red Cross, Mississippi Emergency Management Agency as well as bordering state DOTs and highway patrols. Vital information on shelters, pet care, lodging and travel resources is also included.

The hurricane evacuation checklist provides a list of recommended items to include in evacuation kits such as flashlights, a first aid kit, non-perishable food to last 14 days and more.

MDOT encourages all residents to download the MDOT Traffic mobile app, which provides real-time traffic conditions throughout the state and sends emergency alerts directly to users.

To download the Hurricane Evacuation Guide and the full hurricane evacuation kit checklist and for more hurricane safety tips, visit GoMDOT.com/hurricanes.

2022 ANNUAL DRINKING WATER QUALITY REPORT
CITY OF BAY ST. LOUIS

PWS#: 0230001 | JUNE 2023

We're pleased to present to you this year's Annual Quality Water Report. This report is designed to inform you about the quality water and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water.

Contact & Meeting Information

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Steve Thoms at 228.467.5505. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. If you want to learn more, please attend any of our regularly scheduled meetings. They are held on the first Tuesday after first Monday & 2 weeks after this date of each month at 5:30 PM at City Council Chambers located at 543 Main St., Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

Source of Water

Our water source is from wells drawing from the Pascagoula Aquifer. The source water assessment has been completed for our public water system to determine the overall susceptibility of its drinking water supply to identify potential sources of contamination. A report containing detailed information on how the susceptibility determinations were made has been furnished to our public water system and is available for viewing upon request. The wells for the City of Bay St. Louis have received a lower to moderate susceptibility ranking to contamination.

Period Covered by Report

We routinely monitor for contaminants in your drinking water according to federal and state laws. This report is based on results of our monitoring period of January 1st to December 31st, 2022. In cases where monitoring wasn't required in 2022, the table reflects the most recent testing done in accordance with the laws, rules, and regulations.

As water travels over the surface of land or underground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive materials and can pick up substances or contaminants from the presence of animals or from human activity; microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, that may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife; inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally occurring or result from urban storm-water runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming; pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm-water runoff, and residential uses; organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations and septic systems; radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities. In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. It's important to remember that the presence of these contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk.

Terms and Abbreviations

In the table you may find unfamiliar terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Action Level (AL) : The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system must follow.

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL): The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG): The "Goal"(MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL): The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary to control microbial contaminants.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG): The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk of health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

Parts per billion (ppb) or micrograms per liter: one part by weight of analyte to 1 billion parts by weight of the water sample.

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/L): one part by weight of analyte to 1 million parts by weight of the water sample.

* Most recent sample. No sample required for 2022.

Sodium. EPA recommends that drinking water sodium not exceed 20 milligrams per liter (mg/L). Excess sodium from salt in the diet increases the risk of high blood pressure and cardiovascular disease.

Disinfection By-Products:

(82) Total Trihalomethanes (TTHMs). Some people who drink water containing Trihalomethanes in excess of the MCL over many years may experience problems with their liver, kidneys, or central nervous systems, and may have an increased risk of getting cancer.

We are required to monitor your drinking water for specific contaminants on a monthly basis. Results of regular monitoring are an indicator of whether or not our drinking water meets health standards. In an effort to ensure systems complete all monitoring requirements, MSDH now notifies systems of any missing samples prior to the end of the compliance period.

LEAD INFORMATION

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. Our water system is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>. The Mississippi State Department of Health Public Health Laboratory offers lead testing. Please contact 601.576.7582 if you wish to have your water tested.

FLUORIDE INFORMATION

To comply with the "Regulation Governing Fluoridation of Community Water Supplies", our system is required to report certain results pertaining to fluoridation of our water system. The number of months in the previous calendar year in which average fluoride sample results were within the optimal range of 0.6-1.2 ppm was 6. The percentage of fluoride samples collected in the previous calendar year that was within the optimal range of 0.6-1.2 ppm was 75%. The number of months samples were collected and analyzed in the previous calendar year was 6.

Note: this system adds fluoride to your drinking water to help prevent and reduce cavities and improve overall oral health. Supply-chain issues have limited or prevented this water system's ability to obtain fluoride on a regular basis. The data presented above only reflects the months when this water system added fluoride to your drinking water.

VIOLATIONS

Our system exceeded the MCL for Disinfection Byproducts in the last quarter of 2022. The standard for Trihalomethanes (TTHM) is .080 mg/L. We are working with the MSDH to evaluate the water supply and researching options to correct the problem.

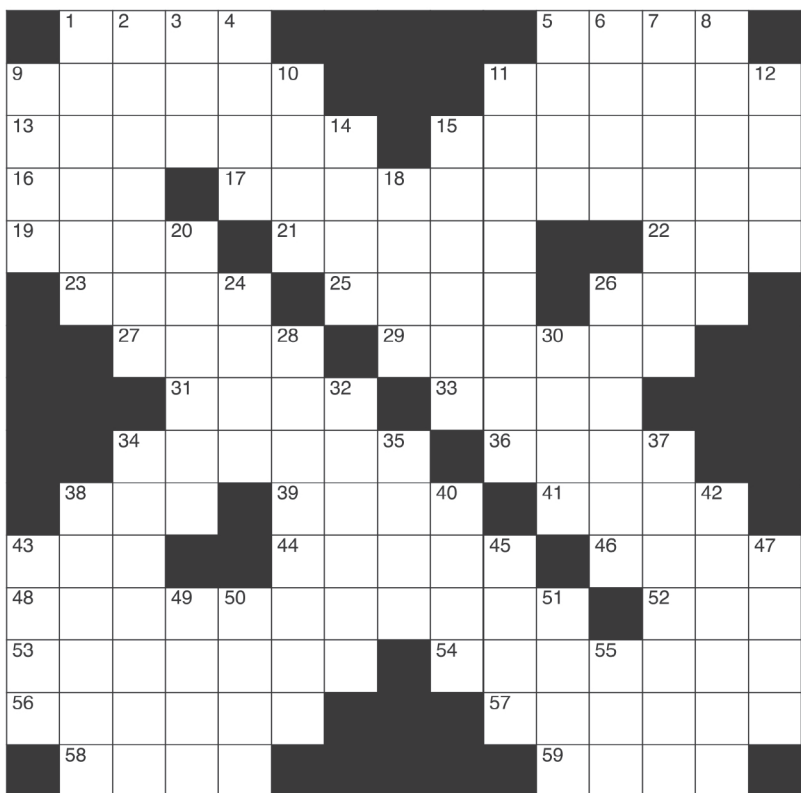

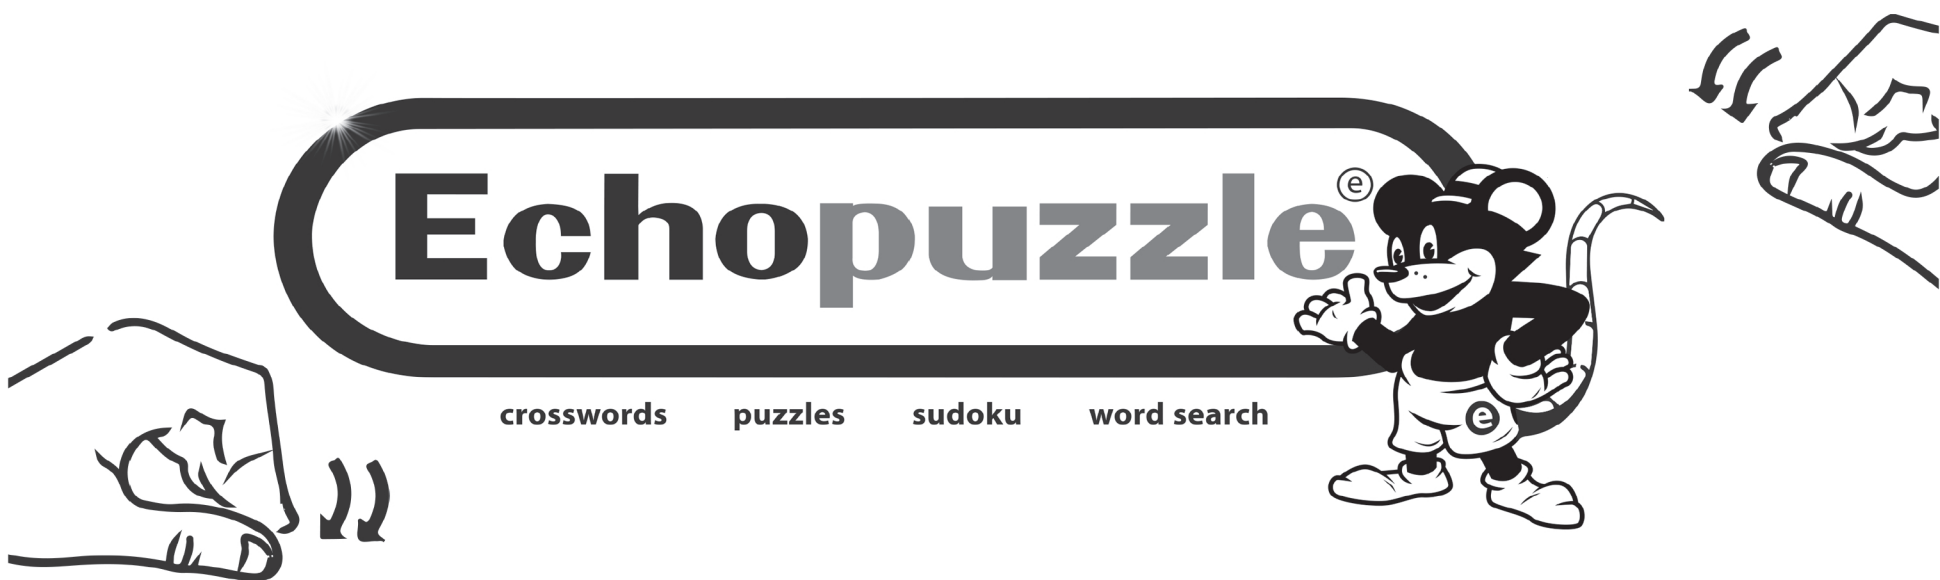

UNREGULATED CONTAMINANTS

Unregulated contaminants are those for which EPA has not established drinking water standards. The purpose of unregulated contaminant monitoring is to assist EPA in determining the occurrence of unregulated contaminants in drinking water and whether future regulations are warranted.

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man-made. These substances can be microbes, inorganic or organic chemicals and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1.800.426.4791.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline 1.800.426.4791.

The City of Bay St. Louis works around the clock to provide top quality water to every tap. We ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life and our children's future.

Spiritual Faith

By REV. C. GERALD RICHARDSON, D. MIN

C. Gerald Richardson, D. MIN.

Can spiritual faith be defined? Most of the religions in our modern world declare that at least two qualities are generally present in an authentic spiritual experience. 1) A definable set of beliefs which can be clearly articulated. 2) A commitment to practices and a manner of living which at least try to be compatible with those beliefs.

Elaine Pagels, professor of history of religion at Princeton University, has written extensively about how we arrived at the commonly understood systems of theological understanding and behaviors which usually characterize religion in our time. My current favorite among her works is a book entitled Beyond Belief.

As I read Pagels, it occurs to me that she does not object to honestly held beliefs. However, she does delve deeply into the history of typical belief systems. There is not, in my understanding of her thinking, a specific formula which is required to have faith.

She examines how we got the scriptures which usually form the bedrock of belief systems. There are “extra biblical” documents which were written around the same time as the New Testament. These were also considered in the conference which gave us our present bible and the Nicene Creed. They were rejected as scripture for a variety of reasons, most of which had to do with theological understandings prevalent at the time. Pagels examines these documents and writes about them in her work.

The collection of writings which we now know as The Holy Bible is a crucial part of the faith journey of most people. It is valuable for guidance, instruction, inspiration, and help as we encounter life. Our world would be greatly diminished without it. However, it is not to be read as a rule book, but in light of the dialogue (sometimes debate) that exists within its pages. When read in that way, one powerful truth emerges. Each person must find a path to truth by which they can live, and eventually die. One need not be a theologian or biblical scholar to do this. It is necessary to use the tools we have to engage in deep, personal introspection. In the words of The Gospel of Thomas, one of the extra-biblical documents examined by Pagels, “We must bring forth that which is within us. If we bring forth what is within us, it will save us. If we withhold that which is within us, it will destroy us.” Some of us have discovered that this is an effective formulation of prayer. Of course, we seek blessings for ourselves and loved ones, but the essence of prayer is the discovery of our deepest selves. It is a healthy path to faith.

This is not a simplistic task. It calls for hard work and sincere intention. It leads to the deepest places in our being. Sometimes it is uncomfortable. It may bring into question some long-held assumptions. It does not make us perfect, nor does it provide all the answers. It does lead to life.

Hancock Health Foundation and Partners present Youth Mental Health First Aid Workshop Series

SEA COAST ECHO

The Hancock Health Foundation, in collaboration with the Hancock County Library System, the Mental Health Association of South MS and Pine Belt Mental Health, will provide free ‘Youth Mental Health First Aid’ (YMHFA) as part of the library system’s GOOD to KNOW! series and will provide training to adults who live with, work with or serve children and teenagers.

Five one-day training sessions will be held, one at each branch of the Hancock Library System. Waveland Library will be host to the first YMHFA Training on Wednesday, June 28 from 8:30 to 4:00. Breakfast and lunch will be provided to participants. The four other Library branches each will host the one-day training in August.

YMHFA is designed to teach parents, family members, caregivers, teachers, school staff, peers, neighbors, health and human services workers, and other caring citizens how to help an adolescent (age 12-18) who is experiencing a mental health or addictions challenge or is in crisis. YMHFA is primarily designed for adults who regularly interact with young people.

The course introduces common mental health challenges for youth, reviews typical adolescent development, and teaches a 5-step action plan for how to help young people in both crisis and non-crisis situations. Topics covered include anxiety, depression, substance use, disorders in which psychosis may occur, disruptive behavior disorders (including AD/HD), and eating disorders.

This Mental Health program will equip trainees with skills to identify, understand and respond to signs of mental health issues and substance use challenges and crisis experiences in youth. The onset of mental health issues is often due to trauma. A traumatic experience has a ripple effect, much like throwing a rock in water.

“We have recently seen the devastating effects mental health issues in our youth can have on our community at large with the recent shooting at an after-prom house party,” said Sherry Ponder, President of the Hancock Health Foundation. The shooting resulted in the death of two local teens, and injury of four others. She added, “perhaps the outcome could have been different if someone had been able to recognize and provide Mental Health

First Aid.”

To register for the workshop, please call the Waveland Library at (228) 467-9240.

The libraries’ willingness to host the trainings, provides opportunities in our various community neighborhoods. Sponsors of the Youth Mental Health First Aid Workshop Series include the Hancock Health Foundation, Hancock County Library System, Mental Health Association of South Mississippi and Pine Belt Mental Health.

waterfront and historic neighborhoods.

According to Orion leaders, “These places form the core of BSL identity. Their preservation and enhancement is vital for BSL’s future.”

- Expanding mixed-use development beyond downtown. Waterfront neighborhoods along the Jourdan River and Bay present opportunities for complimentary, neighborhood supportive mixed-use development, according to Orion.
- Improving suburban commercial areas, the Hwy., 90 corridor, etc., for improved user experience and development performance through quality site design, building design and pedestrian friendly and attractive streetscapes.
- Balancing community change from hometown to tourist destination, “so vital to preserving community life and culture. Facilitating the supply of full-time housing while balancing demand for short-term rentals and second homes is a vital component.”

- Enhancing contemporary community development standards and codes “to ensure preservation of Bay St. Louis’ historic, small town and coastal atmosphere.”
- Extending and improving mobility and connectivity for pedestrians and cyclists, with emphasis on connecting the city’s recreational assets.
- Protecting and restoring, where needed, the ecological integrity of the Bay’s natural environmental context.
- Increasing parks and recreation facilities and resources for actively programmed spaces, which would include improved existing facilities or the creation of new ones.

Barber said that the survey responses indicated that residents scored their current happiness with the city at an average 7.7 on a 10-point scale, which is “very high.”

They key, he said, is to preserve the character of Bay St. Louis while determining the best ways to manage its growth, based on residents wishes and existing growth patterns.

Among concerns Orion has heard from residents, Barber said:

- Commercial rent costs have increased, leading to a loss of retail businesses.
- A shrinking amount of local retail businesses in Old Town.
- The Hwy. 90 corridor is “dated,” with fewer retailers than before.

After the presentation Monday, residents had an opportunity to meet with Orion planners and offer their input.

Orion is the same company the city of Diamondhead contracted with in 2020 to create its “Envision Diamondhead 2040” 20-year plan.

Orion first submitted its proposal to the city of Bay St. Louis last October and was one of three companies bidding for the project. The total cost is projected at $165,000.

“Bay St. Louis’s natural assets, such as its beautiful and accessible waterfront and its concerns for developing attractive and walkable nodes of commerce, potential expansion of walking and biking paths, and the opportunity to preserve the vibrancy of its neighborhoods combine to create a rich context for city planning,” according to Orion’s proposal.

“They also offer a strong position from which to successfully address its challenges. Changing conditions have presented multiple challenges in maintaining and enhancing the city’s small-town character, ensuring ongoing sustainability, accommodating smart growth, enhancing economic vitality, and ensuring fiscal stability.”

Orion Planning and city officials will host another meeting at the Bay St. Louis Community Hall today, Thursday, from 5:30-6:45 p.m. to offer a “Framework Plan Presentation,” including drawings and suggestions based on residents’ input so far.

Nikki Moon, former owner of the Baytown Inn and a long-time tourism board member, said she hopes more people attend Thursday’s meeting than showed up Monday.

“Everyone wanted the opportunity for input,” she said, “yet what we’ve got here is, there are about 25 people in this room tonight.”

The Bay St. Louis Community Hall is located at 301 Blaize Ave. Everyone is welcome at Thursday’s meeting.

Blues Brunch featuring Johnny Sansone Trio

SEA COAST ECHO

The 100 Men Hall is hosting its Second Sunday BLUES BRUNCH featuring the best of blues music and the finest in dining all served in a historical setting. Sunday, July 9, from 11-1PM, the second installment of BLUES BRUNCH will feature the Johnny Sansone Trio. Tickets are $15 in advance and $20 at the door. Food for purchase and cash/credit bar.

US blues artist Johnny Sansone started a recording career in 1987, and his new album, Into Your Blues, is produced on his own label Short Stack Records and features all self-penned songs. The 64-year-old singer and songwriter produced the 11-song set and plays a mean harmonica (his harp skills are heard on several movie soundtracks) and resonator guitar. The New Jersey bluesman has resided in New Orleans since 1990 and is also known for his Cajun and Zydeco gigs on accordion.

As a kid, Johnny started out on saxophone and moved on to harmonica and guitar before he decided a blues man he would be, after he saw a Howling Wolf show in Florida at the age of 12. He sat in with Honeyboy Edwards (Robert Johnson's compatriot) at 13-years-old. During the 1970s Sansone studied with blues harmonica legends James Cotton and Jr. Wells. In the 1980s he toured with Ronnie Earl, John Lee Hooker, Jimmy Rodgers and Robert Lockwood Jr.

He has won several awards over the years, and caught the eye and ear of Anders Osborne, and the pair began writing songs together. Osborne produced Sansone's 2007 release "Poor Man's Paradise." In 2009, Sansone formed an acoustic trio with Osborne and guitarist John Fohl.

PRCC's Cooksey named All-American

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

After a stellar sophomore season with the Pearl River Wildcats, former Bay High Tigers pitcher Cooper Cooksey was recently named a National Junior College Athletic Association Second team All-American selection in baseball. This honor marks the fifth consecutive season that a PRCC player has been named to the prestigious list. Pearl River head coach Michael Avalon commented in a recent interview, “What a well-deserved honor for Cooper after an incredible year. Finishing the year with the lowest ERA in all of NJCAA Division II baseball is absolutely remarkable,” Pearl River head coach Michael Avalon said. “What many do not understand or think about is that he accomplished this while facing some of the best lineups in the country in the toughest conference in the country. What a final chapter to his time here at Pearl River, and we look forward to following him as his career continues.” Cooksey, a right-handed pitcher, threw 68.1 innings and led the NJCAA with a 1.32 ERA. The ERA mark also set a school record at PRCC. Cooksey posted a 9-1 record along with 64 strikeouts and just 29 walks. He was also named first team

All-MACCC and All-Region 23. In a previous interview, Cooksey stated, “It is a great honor. I know not many people get the opportunity to say they are an All-American. My coaches are the reason for where I am. I can’t thank them enough for what they have done for me.” Cooksey previously signed to pitch next year for the University of South Alabama. Cooksey’s selection pushes the list of Pearl River All-Americans to 14. He joins previous honorees Greg Guidry (First Team; 1994), Jake Smith (Second Team; 2003), Rhyne Hughes (First Team; 2004), us. It's not contagious. But some would have us believe that recognition or tolerance will poison our children's minds and turn them into rainbow flag-waving "non-binary" victims. We should have more faith in our kids. And a little empathy for those who really are "different."

Many people hate and fear immigrants, who some would have us believe are all criminals. Is there some evil Democratic plot to replace Caucasians with hordes of Latin and Asian law-breakers? Certainly, the country is changing demographically, but hardly as a result of nefarious planning. Who wouldn't want to get out of a dangerous and squalid situation if they could come here and have a chance at a better life? And it is rarely noted in the media that immigrants in general, and Hispanics, particularly, are hardly monolithic. Elections have shown that many tend to become more conservative and Republican as they progress up the economic ladder.

Defund the police? Nope. It hasn't really happened. One survey of 109 departments in 2022, found 91 were spending at least two percent more on police than in 2019 and only eight had cut funds by the same amount. And much of the talk that Republican politicians characterize as "defunding the police" is actually about re-directing funds and training toward mental health and crisis intervention, areas that many police officers are ill equipped to deal with, sometimes with tragic results.

There are dozens of other things that so-called conservatives would have us cowering over. But there are more genuinely frightening things out there - like the guns that politicians have allowed to fall into the hands of virtually anyone, and win-at-any-cost politics that threaten the economy, divide the country into belligerent factions and denigrate our electoral system.

To be SAFE, be AWARE EVERYWHERE.

Electrical safety starts with being aware of electrical hazards. Think safety first and use these tips to stay safe at home, on the job and on the go.

Electricity from power lines can "jump" to nearby objects...including you. That's why you should always stay at least 10 feet away from overhead lines.

Attention DIYers: There are live wires behind those walls. Use an electrical cable detector to locate them before your drill bit does.

Before you dig that flowerbed, remember there may be underground lines where you're about to dig. Call 811 to locate them and your project will turn out just rosey.

Flag Retirement Program

Edmond Fahey Funeral Home works with local residents and the veterans services organizations to properly retire any U.S. flag that has reached the end of its service. Our program is designed to honor our national heroes, our military veterans, and to give dignity to our American Flag when it is no longer worthy of display. We strive to see that each veteran being cremated has a flag. There is no charge for this service to our veterans.

According to the United States code, Title 4, Chapter 1, Subsection 8: "The flag, when it is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning."

If you would like to honor a deceased veteran by donating an aged or worn flag to be properly disposed of, you may do so by delivering the flags to our funeral home located on the corner of Necaise Avenue and Main Street.

"We pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."
